"Chasing Denali" Author Visit

The history of mountaineering began on Denali with the legendary story of four gold miners who claimed to have summited after climbing more than 8,000 feet of steep snow and ice, then descended - in a single and incredibly dangerous day in 1910 - all the while lugging a 25-pound, 14-foot flagpole to mark their success.

Was the expedition a success or a hoax? Detailed in his newest book "Chasing Denali", Denali expert Jon Waterman chases the truth during his final climb of the mountain and relates his findings in an attempt to solve one of the most colorful mountaineering mysteries ever told.

The ICL is pleased to host Mr. Waterman, who will give an in-depth presentation of images, video, and storytelling reflecting upon his adventures from 40 years of mountaineering on Denali, North America's highest mountain.

11 am—12:30 pm, Saturday, June 1st, 2019

No advanced registration is required. Snacks and refreshments will be provided!

"The Past and Future of Wolves in Colorado" Talk

The University Press of Colorado recently published The Last Stand of the Pack, Critical Edition, which is a reprint of a 1929 book that describes the trapping, shooting, and killing of the last wolves in Colorado.

Dr. Andrew Gulliford, professor of history and environmental studies at Fort Lewis College, was a co-editor on the book and will discuss the history of wolves in Colorado, and in particular why they were killed in the 1920s.

*This talk is meant to be both objective and informative for people wanting to learn more about wolves in Colorado, rather than serve as a debate about the possibility of their re-introduction.

Mental Health Tip of the Month:

Now that the snow is gone and it's easier to get around, this month would be a great time to reach out and connect more with other people!

Reach out to someone you haven't spoken to in a while by phone or text and catch up with them, or even invite them out for a meal!

If you enjoy a certain activity join up with a group of people (via the library, MeetUp, etc.) to try and make some new connections!

If you are struggling with something difficult, attempt to seek out at least one person in your life to talk about it with, or join a support group.

Computer Tip of the Month:

Have you ever wanted to quickly find a specific word, phrase or name of something in a document or online article/webpage?

Just click the Ctrl button along with the F button.

Doing so will bring up a search option in the top right corner of your screen. Then all you have to do is type the word or name you are looking for so that the computer can search the text to find it for you!
